Mason – October 2015

Mason is now eleven months old, and despite being a chocolate Labrador, he is very calm. He is also bright and keen to please, so is a pleasure to have around. He leads quite a busy life, going to lots of shops and is a regular at BetFred's. He also enjoys watching his puppy parent's grandsons play football every Sunday.

At home he is learning to be very helpful, especially with the washing. When his puppy parent carries the washing basket outside, he trots alongside. He then carefully passes her each item for her to hang on the line. He is also very quick to pick up any pegs she happens to drop.

Mason really enjoys his free runs. He meets lots of other dogs in the park area and can be quite cheeky about coming back to his puppy parent before he is ready. One day he followed a couple of other dogs back to their car, and I'm sure he would have been quite happy to have jumped in their car too. Fortunately the owner knew Mason's puppy parent and waited for her to arrive before driving off. Mason is certainly a friendly soul.
